Vienna, March 19.

WE are in impatient Expectation of the Reſolution of the Chief of the Hungarian Rebels, on the Project of Accommodation lately offer'd by Monſieur Hamel Bruyninx the Envoy of Holland. Mean time Hoſtilities are continued on both ſides. The 16th inſtant a ſtrong Party of the Rebels came and plunder'd the Village of Fiſcha and burnt ſeveral Houſes, while the Inhabitants were at Church; and afterwards retir'd over the Leita. The ſame day the Count of Dradkowitz came hither Poſt from Count Palfi Ban of Croatia, with the News, that the 9th of this Month the Garriſon of Caniſcha made a vigorous Sally on a ſtrong Detachment of the Rebels who were advanc'd to that Place to endeavour to ſurprize it, and kill'd 200 of them: The next day thoſe Rebels having augmented their Number to 6000 came again before that Town, but the Militia of Croatia being drawn together to cover it, defeated them again killing and taking 300 Men, among them the chief Leader of the Party and ſeveral other Officers. After which the Croatians attack'd the Rebels in the Iſland of Tzakaturn, with ſo much Succeſs, that after ſome Reſiſtance they drove them out of it, killing and taking about 1000 Men: And a great Number of thoſe that threw themſelves into the Danube to get off from the Iſland were drown'd. The whole Loſs ſuſtain'd by the Rebels in theſe Actions, amounts to 1700 Men kill'd or drown'd, beſides ſome hundreds that were wounded or taken. They alſo loſt 11 Colours, 4 of which were brought by the Count of Dradkowitz and preſented to the Emperor. Of the Croatians but 15 were kill'd and 150 wounded. We have Advice likewiſe, that the Garriſon of Zatmar have made a Sally upon the Rebels that block up that Place, and totally routed them; whereupon Prince Ragotski has order'd the Militia of the Counties of Saros and Eſperies to take Arms, and form the Blockade of that Place anew, with a greater Number of Men than before.

Leiden, April 1. They write from Venice of the 14th of laſt Month, That the Grand Prior of France advanc'd to the Secchia with 12000 Men and a Train of Artillery, to beſiege Revere; but great Rains falling oblig'd him to put off that Enterprize; And that the young P. of Vaudemont was return'd from Piemont to Revere, with ſeveral other Officers, to aſſiſt Count Trautmanſdorf in taking proper Meaſures to ſecure that Place, as well as Oſtiglia and Mirandola.

From the Leiden & Amſt. Gazettes, dated April 1.

Turin, March 17. His Royal Highneſs haſtens his New Levies and other Preparations, in order to open the Campaign very early. The Imperialiſts have ſurpriz'd 2 Caſtles on the other ſide the Seſia, in which the French had put weak Garriſons; but ſome of the Enemy's Troops are marching with Artillery to endeavour to retake thoſe Caſtles. The Chevalier de St. Remi is on the March with the Regiment de la Croix blanche to reinforce the Garriſon of Nice. His Royal Highneſs having reſolv'd to make ſome Additions to the Fortifications of the Town and Caſtle of Ivrea, has publiſh'd a Placard inviting thoſe who are minded to undertake thoſe Works to give in their Propoſals. The Marqueſs of Bagnaſco, General of the Artillery, has likewiſe given publick Notice, that ſuch as will undertake to furniſh the Train with what is neceſſary for this Summer's Service, muſt make their Propoſals by the 17th of this Month. The Commiſſaries appointed to receive the 6000 Swiſs that are raiſing by the Catholick Cantons, are gone to the Dutchy of Aoſte, to make the neceſſary Preparations for thoſe that are to be diſpos'd in that Country. 2000 of them are to be garriſon'd in ſeveral Places in that Dutchy, out of which 2 Regiments will be drawn to be employ'd in the Field. His Royal Highneſs has order'd the Officers of the Train of Artillery and others that attend the Army to be ready to march by the 1ſt of April. Yeſterday a Regiment that was garriſon'd here, march'd out for Chieri; and their room is ſupplied by a new Regiment commanded by the Count de la Trinite, compos'd moſt of young Men. The French Troops that were in the Valley of Pragelas are retir'd out of it; and their 2 Battallions that were at Chaumont in the Neighbourhood of Suza, are gone from thence.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 1.

Zurich, March 22. Monſieur de Sainte Colombe who was ſent to the Court of France by the Marqueſs de Puiſieux, is not yet return'd with the Reſolution of that Court touching the Neutrality of all Savoy demanded by the Helvetick Body. They write from Berne, that Monſieur de Limague the Ambaſſador of France's Agent, has deſir'd that Canton in very preſſing Terms to furniſh the King his Maſter with a Regiment; but that there is no likelihood of their granting it, at leaſt before his Majeſty has explain'd himſelf touching the Neutrality abovemention'd. The Levies of 6000 Men which the Catholick Cantons, in purſuance of the Treaty of Alliance between them and the Duke of Savoy, have agreed to put into the Service of his Royal Highneſs, go on apace; one Regiment, part of the 6000 Men, is compleated already; But theſe Troops are to be employ'd only in the Defence of his Royal Highneſs's Dominions. The following Memorial was preſented, a few days ago, by Monſieur de Mellarede, to the Regents of Berne.

Moſt Illuſtrious Lords!

I Should be remiſs in teſtifying the Confidence his Royal Highneſs my Maſter has in your Lordſhips, ſhould I defer acquainting you, that the Laudable Canton of Lucerne and the Laudable Cantons of Sweitz, Underwald, Zug, and Glaris, have granted the Levies I deſir'd in the Name of his Royal Highneſs; that the Drums have beat up for Volunteers all this Week; that thoſe Cantons ſhew great Forwardneſs to ſuccour a Prince their Neighbour and Ally; and that the Canton of Ury is ready to follow their Example. Thus you ſee the Laudable Catholick Cantons will concurr in executing the generous and wholeſome Reſolutions you ſhall take, to prevent being ſurrounded on all ſides by France, by obliging them to withdraw their Troops out of Savoy and accept the Neutrality which you have ſignified to them is ſo neceſſary for your Security. 'Tis high time, moſt Illuſtrious Lords, to make uſe of the favourable Opportunity that is offer'd you of ſucceeding in this Deſign: The French having ſo much other Buſineſs on their Hands, have few Troops in Savoy; Thoſe few that are there, have lately felt the Valour of your Countrymen that are garriſon'd in Montmeillan, and will not dare to wait the coming of thoſe you ſhall ſend againſt them.

I will not repeat the Motives that ought to prevail with you to take this Reſolution. You are thoroughly affected affected with them; You are convinc'd that your Negociations with France are useless; You are provok'd at the Shifts and Delays with which they endeavour to amuse you to retard the Execution of a Project that is no less Necessary than Glorious to you; You cannot but resent the Haughty Carriage of their Ministers towards you; nor can you forbear thereupon to reflect seriously what you are to expect from a Potentate that treats you with so little Decency at a time when he ought most to court your Friendship; and who injuriously reproaches you with the Favours he pretends to have done you, without reflecting that far from acknowledging those he has receiv'd from you, he does not so much as perform his part of the Alliances he has contracted with you.

Hesitate no longer, I beseech you, most Illustrious Lords, to take Measures for preserving a Neighbourhood that is so agreeable, and which cannot but be always serviceable, to you; Resolve generously to break the Scheme the Court of France has laid to make you Dependant on their Will; and secure to your Children the Liberty you inherit from your Fathers.

I repeat to you, most Illustrious Lords, my Offer to agree with you on any reasonable Expedients, to satisfie you that my Master will not attack France by the way of Savoy, and that that Dutchy shall be perfectly Neutral. My Soveraign seeks only to remove from your Frontiers the Arms of a Potentate who threatens the Liberty of his Neighbours: 'Tis time for you to set about this Work if you would succeed in it, and to agree together on Means for procuring a lasting Tranquility on the side of Savoy; It depends wholly on you, I offer to enter into a Negociation with you upon it; in which Negociation I flatter my self I shall convince you of the intire Confidence my Master has in you, the Friendship he has for you, and the Value he puts on the Friendship you have for him, and that nothing is Dearer to him than such Neighbours as you.

For my own part, I hope to prove, most Illustrious Lords, by the Sincerity of my Proceedings, the strong Desire I have to serve you and to merit your Esteem. &c.
